A LITTLE GUIDE FROM SACREDWALLSTUDIO

How to print your art

so it looks as beautiful on your wall as it does on screen

Thank you for your purchase! Your download contains the same design in six ratio groups, each as a high-resolution 300 DPI JPG and a matching print-ready PDF. Pick the file that matches your frame, print it, and hang it. The three sections below walk you through it.

1 · WHICH FILE FOR WHICH FRAME

Each file name contains a ratio label. Match the label to your frame size with this table. One file covers every size in its row: a 2:3 file printed at 8×12" is just as sharp as at 24×36".

Look for this in the file name	Ratio	Frame sizes it prints perfectly at
..._2x3_...	2 : 3	4×6, 6×9, 8×12, 12×18, 16×24, 20×30, 24×36"
..._3x4_...	3 : 4	9×12, 12×16, 15×20, 18×24"
..._4x5_...	4 : 5	4×5, 8×10, 12×15, 16×20"
..._11x14_...	11 × 14	11×14"
..._5x7_...	5 : 7	5×7, 10×14"
..._ISO_A_...	ISO A-series	A5 · A4 · A3 · A2 · A1

- JPG or PDF? Both are the same artwork. Print shops and online printers usually prefer the JPG; home printers and copy shops handle the PDF best because it already knows its physical size.
- Not sure of your frame's ratio? Divide the short side by the long side. 8×10 = 0.80 → 4:5. 11×14 = 0.79 → 11×14. 12×18 = 0.67 → 2:3. A4 = 0.71 → ISO A.
- Printing a size that's not listed? Choose the closest ratio and ask for "fit to page" or trim a sliver from the edge; the design has a generous margin so nothing important is lost.

2 · PAPER THAT MAKES IT LOOK PREMIUM

- Best: matte or satin photo paper, 200–300 gsm (65–110 lb). Matte hides glare behind glass and suits the soft, minimalist colours of these designs.
- Good: heavyweight matte cardstock (about 250 gsm) for a gallery-print feel.
- Fine for a quick test: ordinary office paper. Great for checking size and placement before the real print.
- Avoid: glossy paper behind glass (double reflections) and thin paper in large frames (it ripples).

3 · THREE WAYS TO PRINT

At home — easiest for 5×7" up to A4 / 8×10"

- Open the PDF, choose your paper size, and set scaling to 100% / actual size (not "fit to page" unless the paper matches the ratio).
- Select the highest quality setting and the correct paper type in the printer dialog; this matters more than the printer itself.
- Let the print dry for a few minutes before framing.

Local print shop or office store — best for 11×14" and larger

- Copy the JPG (or PDF) to a USB stick or upload it to the shop's website and ask for a matte poster print at your frame size. Places like Staples, Office Depot, Walgreens, CVS, FedEx Office, Walmart Photo and most high-street photo labs do this for a few dollars.
- Tell them the file is 300 DPI and to print it without borders or resizing.

Online printers — best quality for large pieces, delivered to your door

- Upload the JPG to a poster or fine-art print service (for example Prints of Love, Mpix, Printful, Shutterfly, Nations Photo Lab, or any local equivalent). Pick "matte" or "fine art" paper and the size that matches your frame.
- Many services also offer framed or canvas prints from the same file: an easy ready-to-hang gift.

4 · FRAMING & HANGING TIPS

- Standard frames from IKEA, Target, Amazon or any home store fit these sizes; a white mat adds a gallery look and lets a smaller print fill a larger frame.
- Hang the centre of the artwork at roughly eye level (about 57–60" / 145–150 cm from the floor). Above a sofa or bed, leave a hand's width of space.
- Printing more than one? The 2:3 and 3:4 files make a lovely matching gallery wall; keep the same ratio and frame style across the set.

GOOD TO KNOW

- Colours vary slightly from screen to paper and from printer to printer. A quick test print on plain paper is the cheapest way to check.
- The files are for your personal use; you can print them as many times as you like for your own home or as gifts, but please don't resell or share them.
- Lost your files? They stay available under Purchases and reviews in your Etsy account, or in the download email Etsy sent you.

If you enjoy your print, a short review on Etsy means the world to our small shop and helps other people find it. Thank you so much!
